1 Somehow you've used a permanent marker on the white board again. Sigh.

2 Process documentation consists of a photo of the process taken with a mobile phone.

3 You consider new larger sticky notes to be process improvement.

4 When your flip chart collapses, so does your process modeling project.

5 Your favorite color is sticky note yellow.

6 Your idea of collaboration is sharing a white board maker with the guy in the next office.

7 You have so much paper on the wall that your modeling room is deemed a fire hazard by security.

8 Your business process analysis consists of choosing transparent or masking tape to hold paper to the wall.

9 You wonder if the someone 'accidentally' erasing the whiteboard again, is doing it on purpose.

10 Your company's process models are collecting dust in the same file cabinets as extra condiments and take out menus.
